SATURDAY, DECEMBER 2, 1905.

Foot ball is receiving many hard kicks now.

In the various reasons assigned for Thanksgiving, The Times trusts that the people of Barre did not overlook one, that is, that they have a state's attorney who is doing his best to wipe out the illegal sale of liquor in a no license city.

The splendid new building and new equipment for the medical department of the university of Vermont in Burlington should make this institution more popular than ever. The structure is a notable addition to the group of buildings which crowns the college hill in that city.

According to Mayor Manning of the city of Rutland, the city water there is liable to contamination in the spring-time, and when he tried to correct the conditions his hands were tied by the board of aldermen. The former wished to spend a sum not to exceed $10,000, which amount, so it was believed, would remove the possibility of contamination, and the aldermen refused to make the expenditure. The Rutland aldermen may not have heard about the old saw regarding the ounce of prevention, etc.

CHANGING INAUGURATION DATE.

The sight of a president of the United States standing with bared head and taking the oath of office as the snow of a March blizzard is blowing about him recalls the blind devotion of the American people to custom. Presidents of the country have been inaugurated on the fourth of March so long that it is becoming settled in the minds of a great many people that the date cannot be changed. But there are some sensible and reasoning persons who are now agitating for the selection of some other date later in the season for the great event. This agitation needs to be spread as much as possible. March 4, even so far to the south as in Washington, is not the proper date for the outdoor exercises incident to the inauguration. It is just as likely to happen as not that a real Vermont blizzard will have Washington in its grasp at that time, with all the attendant discomforts. A large part of the inauguration exercises are held outdoors to enable the people in the masses that congregate to participate. The oath of office is administered outside the great Capitol building, and the immense parade is of necessity also one of the open air features, while during the entire festivities of the day the great crowds visiting Washington are kept in the streets if they care to see and hear what it is going on. It is scarcely possible or expedient to change the programme so as to limit the inauguration to those few who could be gathered in one building; so that it seems wise to fix the date for the affair at such a time as will not endanger the lives of the people and the participants. In one case a president's death was traced directly to the exposure to which he was subjected on his inauguration day. All men who are called to the presidential chair have not the virility of Theodore Roosevelt and cannot endure the real hardship to which the chief executive must be exposed on this day. President Roosevelt and those who gathered in Washington last March 4 did not have to contend with a blizzard, but they were forced to face a sharp, penetrating wind that made the day uncomfortable.

The suggestion is made that the last week in April be chosen, but that selection is open to some objection because of the fact that it places a five months' interval between election and inauguration.

THREE SERIOUSLY HURT.

Hot Water Heater Exploded in New House at Boston.

Boston, Dec. 2.—Three men were seriously injured, one probably fatally, by the explosion of a hot water heater in the new three-story brick building situated at the corner of Q street and East Broadway, South Boston, yesterday. The house was badly damaged.

The Injured.

John F. Hannon, 35, of 660 Broadway. John Kane, 60 K street.

Michael E. Skerry, 27, 96 Anderson street.

The heater was in use to dry out the plastering. Hannon, who was the contractor in charge of the work, and Kane, who is employed by him, were standing near by and received the full force of the explosion. Hannon was injured internally and his leg was fractured in several places. Kane's skull was fractured and his condition is critical.

Both men were removed to the Carney hospital. Skerry, a painter, was working on a staging outside the house and the explosion pitched him to the ground, a distance of thirty-five feet. His back was injured. The cause of the accident was not determined.

"The Two Sisters," by Denman Thompson

Denman Thompson's admirable play entitled "The Two Sisters" will be presented at the Hale's Theatre on Monday evening the 4th inst. It is full of good things for old and young. Fun is combined with instruction, and there are a dozen laughs for every sigh. No parent could devise a more effective or impressive illustration by which to guide their sons and daughters along the rough uneven pathway of life than is forcibly and exquisitely told in "The Two Sisters." The specialties on the "Boat Tops" of New York afford up-to-date amusement while the excellent story of the play and the capable company and elaborate scenic effects make a complete and enjoyable evening. "The Old Homestead" by the same author affords in advance an idea of this companion play. There should be a crowded audience and a very large advance sale.

A WIDE RANGE.

The variety of styles embraced within the "Dorothy Dodd" is remarkable.

From the street to the ball-room is a wide range, yet "Dorothy Dodd" Shoes can be obtained for both and for all intermediate uses also.

And what is more, they combine the essential qualities of shapeliness, fit and moderate price.
